From the Richmood (Va.) South.]

A sejourn of two weeks at the principal resort in the mountains of Virginia enabled us to ascertain the drift of popular sentiment in regard to the governorship, by personal communication with leading men from various portions of the State. The result of our inquiries is an absolute conviction that John Letcher is the favorite of four-fitchs of the democracy. If his friends exhibit adequate vigilance, no sort of intrigue or combination can defeat his nomination. But they should not abandon themselves to the apathy of excessive confidence. In the absence of all effort among his supporters, he may lose the nomination despite his immense popularity. We are happy to encourage them by assurances of his prependerance over all other aspirants both in the northwest and the southwest. The democracy of these sections admire the lofty independence of his character and appreciate the fidelity of his service to the party; and, what is more to the purpose, they intend to compliment him with the most satisfactory attestation of their confidence and regard. dence and regard.

THE HEALTH OF THE CITY.

[From the New Orleans Picayune, August 224.] From the New Orleans Picayune, August 224.]

The official reports of the yellow fever mortality in the city, published daily in our columns, furnish our readers at home and abroad with reliable data in regard to the actual condition of the health of the city. It will be observed, by an examination of them, that an increase of mortality is recorded since Wednesday, though the total number of deaths from this source for the entire week may not much exceed that reported for the week previous.

In examining the statistics of previous years, when the fever has prevailed in our city, this fact recurs so often as almost to be regarded as data for sound conclusions in regard to the regimen of the disease. It has gradually increased for nine weeks from the date of its first appearance, when it has commenced to decline in nearly the ratio of its previous increase. This is the ninth week since the fever made its appearance, and by the rule alluded to—if it can be called a rule—the number of deaths should largely exceed those reported of any previous week. But, after all, so little is ascertained of the disease, so often do all calculations fail, that what has occurred repeatedly, and almost regularly, in past years, may not recur again.

curred repeatedly, and almost regularly, in past years, may not recur again.

The nortality this senson is not as great as it was for the corresponding weeks of 1855. That year was not regarded by our citizens, or by strangers, as one attended with the scenes usual when an epidemic prevails. There is scarcely a probability that we shall be called upon to record so high a mortality as marked that year, and we may hope soon to date the commencement of a return to a normal state of health.

NEWS FROM DEMARARA.

A correspondent at Georgetown, Demarara, writing on the 5th instant, says: The crops this year are beyond all precedent, and the colony is rapidly improving in mining and agricultural enterprises. Upwards of 1,000 persons are now engaged on the banks of the Essequibor tiver gold washing, and an English company is in the Pacuraima hountains breaking quarts by steam, and are reaping a rich harvest. Cotton, tobacco, rice, and corn grow well, and their culture has attracted the attention of capitalists to such an extent that the export of these staples in a few years will quadruple the present yield. Ditching the land along the sea-shore is going on extensively, and teveral charters for railroads in the Interior have been granted to companies who possess wealth and enterprise.

We learn from the St. Paul Pioneer that Gov. Sibley, of Minnesota, has deposited in the office of the Secretary of State, without his signature, "A bill for an act to provide for the organization and maintenance of a system of common schools," and also "A bill for an act to provide for the appraisal and sale of school lands." The objections of the Governor to these bills were of a constitutional character, and were filed with the bills.

Gregoro Mier y Teran, $50,000: D. Manuel Hurbe, $50,000: D. Joaquín Rosas, $50,000: D. Antonio Bestegui, a Spaniard, $50,000: D. Manuel Escandon, $30,000: D. Miguel Maria Bringas, $25,000, and other capitalists $20,000 cach. This was refused; and thereupon the offending capitalists were ordered to be arrested and thrown into prison, which was done with Schors Escandon and Bringas, and was not done with the others only because they had concealed themselves, either at some of the consulates or the residences of their friends. To Schor Bestegui, who is ninety years of age, his passports were sent, ordering his removal from the republic as "dangerous and suspicious," as we should say, or as a "pernicious foreigner," as Mexican magniloquence literally hath it. The interference of the French Consul, however, prevented the consummation of this outrage. Such proceedings as this will be well understood to have caused the greatest disgust; and such was the state of feeling in the city that the Mint had actually thought it necessary to have the last consignment of silver received sent to the English Legation for safety! ecessary to have the last consignment of silver received ent to the English Legation for safety! The same writer states that Gen. Miramon was then in

The American State Council of New York assembled at The American State Council of New York assembled at Albany on the 24th instant, some four hundred strong. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the President's Kansas policy; in favor of a registry law, the Bible in the public schools, and in favor of co-operating with others entertaining the same views. The policy of distinct nomitiations or of making overtures to the republicans, with a view to fusion, was earnestly discussed, but it was finally resolved to hold a State convention at Syracuse on the 8th of September, the day and place for holding the republican convention.

Mr. Clay declines the honor, and in doing so writes a long letter, reviewing the legislation of Congress during its last session upon the subject of Kansas. The Mobile Register says of it, that it "contains an eloquent and statesmanlike review of the political topics of the day, and is redolent of all that lofty and ardent devotion to the rights and interests of the South which has ever distinguished its author."

At the next election in the State of New York the question is to be determined whether the State constitution shall be subjected to revision. The principal changes suggested are, the institution of a new judicial system, which shall be non-elective; that the mayors of cities shall have control of the several corporation "bureaus and heads of departments," and be responsible for their conduct; a change of the State and county prison system; and that the regulation of the excise be left to the cities, towns, and villages, respectively, instead of being under the management of State officers.

A court of inquiry was ordered to conveae at Leavenworth, Kansas, on yesterday, to investigate the conduct of Capt. Van Vliet, quartermaster at that post, for alleged disobadience of instructions in the matter of mule purchases. So says the St. Louis Democrat.

The Philadelphia navy-yard, at the present time, presents an animated appearance. The work on the new steam sloop-of-war Lancaster is nearly completed, and she will be ready for launching early in September. The sail-makers have nearly finished the sails for this vessel. The keel of one of the new steam propeller sloops, ordered by the last Congress, has been laid in the small ship-house, and the work is progressing vigorously. Mr. Griffiths, a naval constructor, has arrived here from Washington, and is now engaged upon the drawings for the other vessel, and will superintend her construction. She will be built outside, on the ways of the dry-dock, being the first instance of a vessel-of-war being built at this yard outside of one of the ship-houses. The frigate Congress, which has been for some time here, undergoing a thorough overhauling and repairing, is nearly finished, and will be ready for sea in about four weeks. Her stores are now all ready to be sent on board. Her destination is unknown at present. Two vessels have been lately ordered here for repairs—one the steamer Walker, for the Light-House Board, and the schooner Spray, on account of the Coast Survey. This makes the procedure slow, but at the same time effects almost perfect indestructibility. Considerable work is yet requisite in this neighborhood, until the line again meets at a few hundred yards distant a piece of aqueduct that has been finished for years. In this neighborhood of the range of canal lecks the aqueduct is building a waste-weir, nearly finished, for the protection of the canal, as well as for its own convenience. From the finished portion of the aqueduct. protection of the canal, as well as for its own convenience. From the finished portion of the aqueduct, covering a distance of nine and a half miles, down to the reservoir at Powder Mill Branch, the contractor is Mr. Cady, whose work is divided into eleven sections, distributed to sub-contractors. This whole distance, not-withstanding the extreme ruggedness of much of it, and the interception of several tunnels through rock of unual hardness and viduots over a great many streams. Is the interception of several tunnels through rock of unusual hardness and viaducts over a great many streams, is so nearly finished that six weeks more are said to be sufficient to put it out of hand. A very fine plece of work, like all the other bridges, of massive stone, known as bridge No. 3, is well advanced, and will form one of the prominent features of this national enterprise to the traveller on the adjacent canal. But as to bridges, none on the line will compete with that over the "Cabin John." (a pretty and copious stream;) for, in point of its span, 225 feet, it claims pre-eminence not only among American but Old World structures of the kind. The boldness and strength of this great work are really remarkable, and feet, it claims pre-eminence not only among American but Old World structures of the kind. The boldness and strength of this great work are really remarkable, and will merit and command the admiration of every beholder, whether professional or otherwise. The stones of which it is building are lifted from the valley below to the dizzy heights of the structure by means of a steamengine. This bridge will be another striking object to the wayfarer on the canal, and add no little to the already picturesque scenery along that route. From the "Cabin John" to the great reservoir little of the aqueduct proper remains to be done. Several tunnels intervene, but they are either quite or nearly completed. The great reservoir, at Powder Mill branch, has been cleared, cleaned, and deepened throughout all its expansive area, and the shores of the bewitchingly wooded islets and promontories that stud and environ it have been shaven and smoothed apparently quite ready for the introduction of the beautiful sheet of water that will there be embosomed amidst lofty hills and shady woods. Perhaps three-fourths of the buge dam which is to confine this sylvan lake are completed, and a large number of men continue busily at work.

In passing from Washington to New York by the pight-line, at Philadelphia the traveller is jolted over the paving-stones in an omnibus for about five miles, and then has to wait an hour or two after his arrival before the cars leave for New York. What we would suggest is that branch-roads should be made for the accommodation of the constantly-increasing number of through assengers, to go around the large cities instead of through them. This would not interfere in the least with those who desire to stop at these cities; and we know of no reason why a traveller should be subjected to these unnecessary delays. It is stated that the energetic management of the Bultimore and Ohio Railroad Company have in contempla-tion a plan which will greatly expedite the great southern and northern mails, as well as travellers generally, on their transit through this city-an arrangement which will have the effect to render the time schedules more comfortable at every point. And we also learn that they have in contemplation the adoption of a measure like that above mentioned, to branch off their road two or three miles from the depot here, and continue it through the eastern section of the city, across the Eastern Braz and onward to the old Maryland Ferry, crossing to Alexandria—thus enabling the northern roads to make more andrin—thus enabling the northern roads to make more direct and speedy connexions with the great southern lines. Mone About That Vandalem.—In yesterday's local column we alluded to the recent destruction of tombstones and valuable marble monuments in the marble yard of Mr. William Rutherford, and characterized it as an act of vandalism. We were loath to believe that there were in our midst any beings in the human form so utterly devoid of sentiments of decency and humanity as to wantonly mutilate and destroy the memorials consecrated by affection to the memory of the departed; and is affords us pleasure to ascertain that the destruction may be reasonably accounted for without having recourse to such a supposition. The premises of Mr. R. were yesterday examined by Officers Fanning and Eckloff, of the third district police, with a view of obtaining some clue to the authors of the mischief, and they discovered in numerous places the tracks, not of human feet, but of cows' hoofs. In one place these were visible between two tomb-stones near each other, which had fallen in opposite directions, showing that in crowding through the narrow passage, the cow had been the innocent means.

THE WARRENTON HOMICIDE.-We learn from the War renton correspondence of the Alexandria Sentinel that an investigation of this affair was had before two justices of the county, and an inquest was also held upon the body of the deceased.
